BRILLIANT CAMBRIDGE ALL-ROUNDER

Human's Two Centuries
And 5 For 73.

TOWNSEND 61 AND 14 FOR 90
Tyldesley and Iddon Put On 268 Runs.

London, To-day.
A century in each innings and 5 for 73 in the same match. That was the feat performed by J. H. Human against Surrey at the Oval, and yet the Light Blues were beaten by 6 wickets.

Townsend, the Derbyshire fast bowler, enjoyed the distinction of performing the best all-round feat in the County Championship this year. Against Gloucester he scored 62 and took 14 wickets for 90 runs to give the northern county victory by 71 runs — their sixth this season.

In the same match, Goddard, a medium paced bowler, secured 11 for 101. Ernest Tyldesley and Iddon were associated in the biggest partnership of the season. In an unbroken fourth wicket partnership they added 268 runs against Glamorgan after Lancashire had collapsed for 104 against Mercer, who took 6 for 34.

Tyldesley, who declined the M.C.C. invitation to tour Australia, scored 159 not out, while Iddon registered 100 not out — his second three figure innings of the season. In spite of these triumphs, however, Lancashire conceded major points to the Welsh county.

A thrilling struggle for first innings points was witnessed at Lord's. Worcester, aided by a century by Nichol just managed it — by 5 runs. Rain greatly curtailed the game.

COIN TOSSED TO DECIDE TENNIS GAME

Sutter's Peculiar Elimination.

QUEEN'S CLUB FINALS
FOR TO-DAY

London, To-day.
The flip of a coin eliminated Clifford Sutter from the Final Round of the London Championships at Queen's Club yesterday.

Playing against Stoecken, one of the most promising American players, the New Orleans ace dropped the first set at 12-10. The second set went to 12-all before the players decided to spin a coin to decide the winner. Stoecken won.

Ellsworth Vines, favoured to win the Wimbledon crown for the second year in succession, beat Keith Gledhill, his doubles partner, in the other semi-final.
The scores were 6-8, 7-5, 6-3. Last year Vines was surprisingly eliminated in the Third Round by Harry Hopman, the Australian Davis Cup player.

Mrs. Willis-Moody, who is to make an attempt on her sixth Wimbledon title, defeated Virginia Rice, with whom she crossed the Atlantic, by 6-2, 6-1 to enter the Women's Final.

Unlike the men's event, however, the women's final will be an Anglo-American one. Mrs. Pittman, who displayed surprising form during the tournament, beat Mrs. Andrus Burke, another American entrant, by 6-2, 6-4.

The London Championships are in the nature of a preliminary to the Wimbledon All-England Championships which commence on Monday.

Ellsworth Vines and Helen Willis-Moody, last year's Wimbledon winners, are favoured to repeat their triumphs. The famous American woman champion is attempting to secure her sixth title.

COMPSTON BEATS SARAZEN.

Wins First Of Five Challenge Games.

London, To-day.
Archie Compston, former British Ryder Cup player, has won the first of a series of five matches in a challenge match against Gene Sarazen, the American successor to Bobby Jones.

At Exeter yesterday Compston beat Sarazen by 5 and 4 over 26 holes after the American player had been 2 up at the end of the first 18 holes.
The first-round cards were: Sarazen 68, Compston 71.
Sarazen completed the professional's "double" last year when he won the British and American Open Championships. He also won the U.S. Professional title. — Reuter.

TO SHANGHAI

Shanghai, To-day.

Assistance has reached the Messageries Maritimes liner, m.v. Aramis, which struck a submerged rock on Thursday night during a dense fog, when 210 miles from Shanghai.
Most of the passengers have been transferred to tenders which left Shanghai immediately on receipt of news of the mishap.

It is uncertain whether the Messageries Maritimes motorship Aramis is actually off the rocks which she struck two nights ago.
The Shanghai tug Sampson yesterday supplied the disabled liner with two pumps, while the tender Alexandra left at 8 o'clock this morning with about 100 passengers for Shanghai.

The French cruiser Primague and the sloop Algot left Shanghai yesterday to assist the Aramis.
It was earlier reported that the Aramis' No. 4 hold was badly holed, but that the vessel was in no danger of sinking. The mishap occurred in a deep fog approximately five miles north of Steep Island. — Reuter.

LIST OF HONG KONG PASSENGERS.

The following passengers embarked at Hong Kong on the m.v. Aramis, on Tuesday last.

MORE HEAVY SELLING ON SILVER MARKET

New York, To-day.
Prices showed an advancing tendency on the New York Stock Market yesterday, but business declined on the week's daily trading, only 3,310,000 shares changing hands.

Industrials and rails improved an average of 2.70 and 1.37 to 95.53 and 44.56 respectively, while utilities and bonds rose 1.11 and .01 to 34.72 and 84.99 respectively.

In their daily report, Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Company, through their local correspondents, Messrs. Asia Lands, Ltd., state:—

There is a possibility that we shall have strength to-morrow, in view of the sentiment prevailing here during the past week, if new moves get under way. We think this would carry prices at least to previous highs.

BOURN ELIMINATES TOLLEY

London, To-day.
For the second year in succession the British Amateur Golf Championship will be an all-British one.
As the result of yesterday's semi-finals at Hoylake the Hon. Michael Scott will meet T. A. Bourn, the British Walker Cup player.

The American challenge was frustrated when Scott beat George Dunlap, the American Walker Cup player, by 4 and 3 in the Semi-Final Round.

They were level at the turn and it was only Scott's brilliant play on the greens on the homeward round that gave him such a handsome victory.

Bourn eliminated Cyril Tolley, winner in 1929 and 1928, on the twentieth green. — Reuter.

FOREIGN PLANES OVER GERMANY

Insulting Pamphlets Dropped.

PUZZLING OFFICIAL REPORT

Berlin, To-day.
The German public are puzzled by an official story of foreign airplanes flying over Wilhelmstrasse.

The police and Air Ministry report that the planes, which were foreign and unidentified, dropped pamphlets containing insulting remarks about the German Government.

Nevertheless, enquiries at Tempelhof Aerodrome have elected no knowledge of foreign planes.

The newspapers are ordered to publish a front page statement about aeroplanes that nobody has apparently seen. — Reuter.

Socialist Leader Arrested.

NAZIS ACT QUICKLY.

Berlin, To-day.

The former Reich President of the German Socialist Party, Herr Paul Loebe, was arrested here yesterday afternoon, and also a number of Social Democrats.

The arrests were made in connection with the dissolution of the Socialist Party. — Reuter.

The German Socialist Party in the Reichstag has been prohibited in precisely the same manner as the Nazi Party is prohibited in Austria.

The 120 Socialist members of the Reichstag, as well as those of Federal Parliaments and Municipal Councils are not allowed to exercise their mandates, while their salaries cease forthwith.

PRIVATE ECONOMIC SESSIONS

London Conference Procedure.

MR. MACDONALD HOPEFUL OF THE OUTCOME

The Six sub-committees of the Economic and Monetary Commissions of the World Economic Conference sat privately yesterday, for a detailed consideration of the various matters referred to them.

The British Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, as President of the League of Nations Monetary and Economic Conference, declared in an address to the Press yesterday afternoon, that he was meeting the third week of the Conference with a very buoyant and hopeful heart.

He was not discouraged by the United States attitude towards the proposals for temporary stabilisation of currencies, which he had described as a little setback, adding that he had never felt there was very much in it.

American conditions were for the moment very difficult in relation to the attempt to arrive at temporary stabilisation. The United States memorandum showed clearly what the position was in that country.

Although it was open to question, many of the responsible men, especially working for the success of the Conference, felt that the final utility of any temporary stabilisation became doubtful if it tended to break the upward tendency of prices in the United States.

The situation left by Thursday's note was not at all cloudy or uncertain. It enabled them to go on with their work, and they were doing so.

There was a suggestion abroad that the Conference should adjourn. He could not imagine a more foolish suggestion to be made at this moment. Recalling the efforts of the last 12 months to get the Conference convened, he declared that if they were to adjourn now with a view to resuming in the autumn, the chances were that the situation, instead of being better, would be considerably worse.

Nothing could have a worse effect than such an adjournment upon the determination of practically the whole of the nations of the world to get some spirit of settlement.

"The Conference is going on," he declared emphatically.

There were interests, perhaps, who wanted to destroy the Conference altogether. Mr. MacDonald continued, but he hoped that the Press would steadily resist that sort of influence. All who had experience in previous international conferences, knew they were slow working machines and that the end of the second week was always the time when, perhaps, pessimism began to show itself, as language and other difficulties had, by that time, made themselves felt.

Unanimity Not Essential.

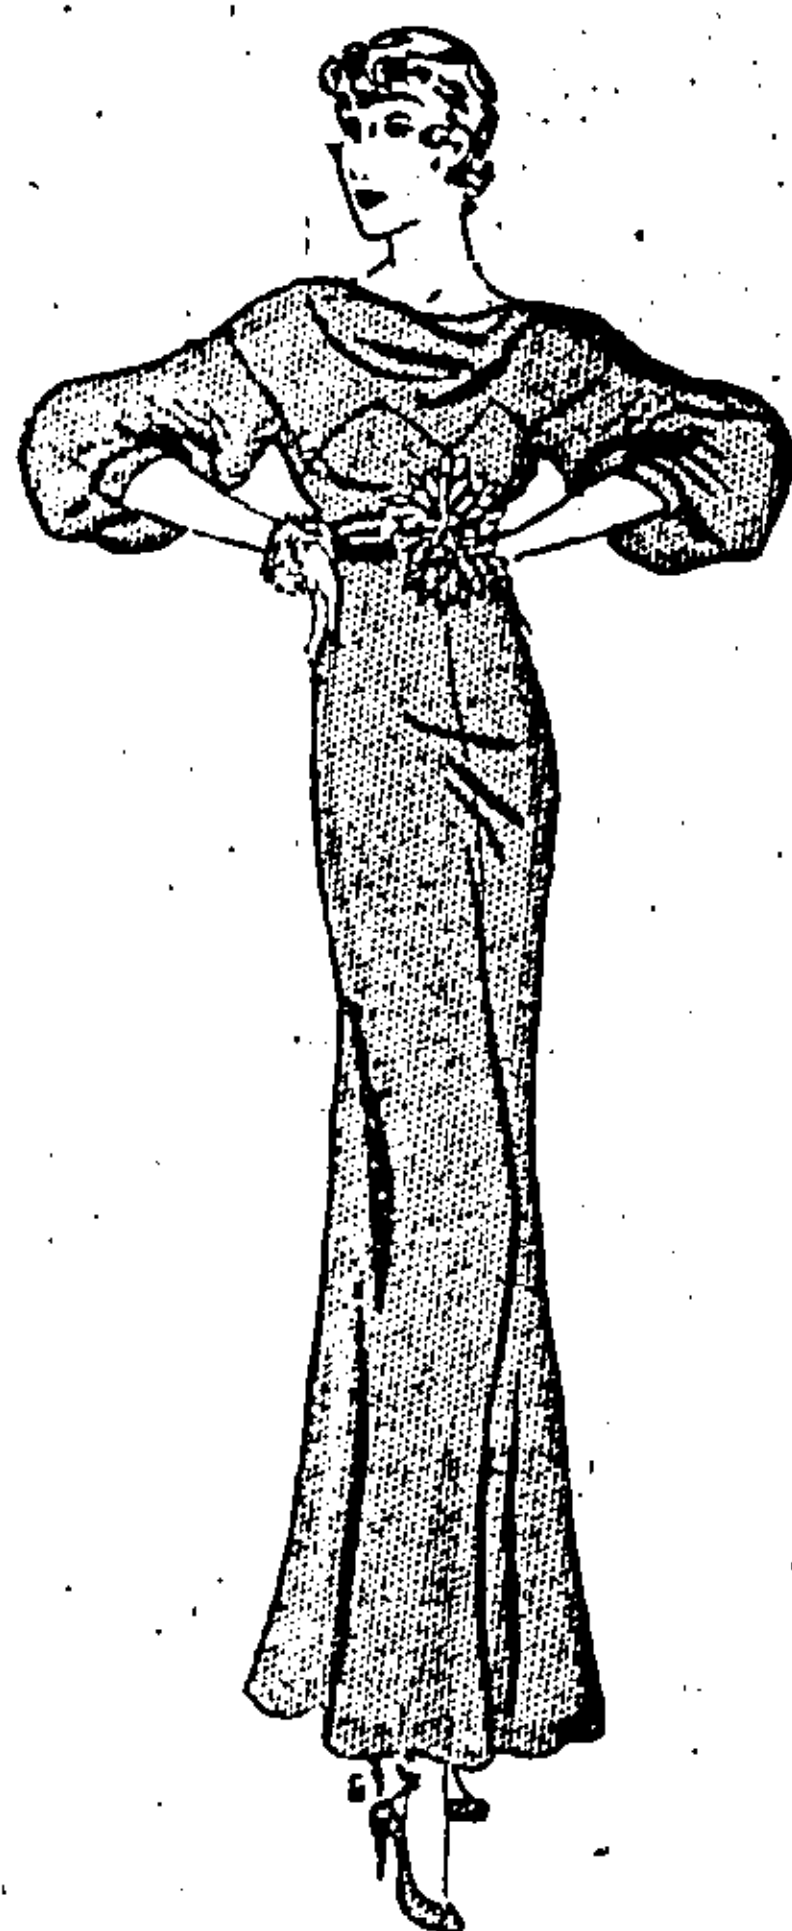

SIR HERBERT SAMUEL'S VIEWS

London, to-day.
Sir Herbert Samuel, the Liberal Party Leader, speaking at Manchester yesterday afternoon, referring to the progress at the World Economic Conference, said that with this Conference, unlike the Disarmament Conference, unanimity was not essential, though it was desirable.

If a group of countries agreed to lower the obstacles to their mutual trade, that would be an important step in the advance. — British Wireless Service.

GAY BUCKLE SETS FASHION.

Paris House Displays New Style Notion.

Paris. If you dislike clothes to be amusing as well as smart turn your eye away from these lines because they are going to be about a very intriguing buckle.

The scene is laid in one of the leading dressmaking establishments here, and said buckle is being shown and its "workings" duly explained to the Duchesse d'Arenberg by her daughter.

It appears on a coat of pumice gray wool that has a collar and military looking revers of sable.

The buckle is of brightly polished copper and has a metal tongue that slides through five rings.

The side of the coat that crosses over has slits cut in it through which the rings are passed, and once the coat is fastened it is guaranteed to remain in place.

£1,000,000 CHILD FIGHT

Eight Years' Legal Tussle Ends.

PREFERS MOTHER

The grandfather of a £1,000,000 child is in London. He is a troubled man.

For eight years at an expense of thousands of pounds the parents—one of whom is his daughter—have waged a legal battle for possession of Diana, his 11-year-old granddaughter.

He is Sir Frederick Williams Taylor, director of the Bank of Montreal and one of the first citizens of Canada.

The testimony in the fight for his granddaughter, Diana Duff Frazier, ran to 640,000 words and filled eight volumes.

It was taken from chambermaids, waiters, private servants, porters, stewards, and others from all parts of the globe, subpoenaed to prove that one or other of the contestants was not fit to have the custody of the child.

KEYHOLE PEEPING

Great architects were brought in to court by both parties as experts, many hours were spent to find if it were possible to see through certain key-holes.

Evidence resulting from spying and eavesdropping in all parts of America, Canada, and France was collected at the expense of thousands of pounds.

The case occupied hundreds of hours and scores of lawyers and squads of detectives were involved.

And now after eight years the judge of the Supreme Court at Florida has reached a decision—helped by the child herself.

He declared that she was to spend nine months a year with her mother and the remainder with the father, because Diana when asked said she would rather stay with her mother "because she did not like papa's new wife."

KIDNAPPING FEAR

Sir Frederick Williams Taylor is a gentle, white-haired man with piercing blue eyes, a Captain Kettle beard, and a charming manner.

"All this publicity has placed my granddaughter in great danger," he said.

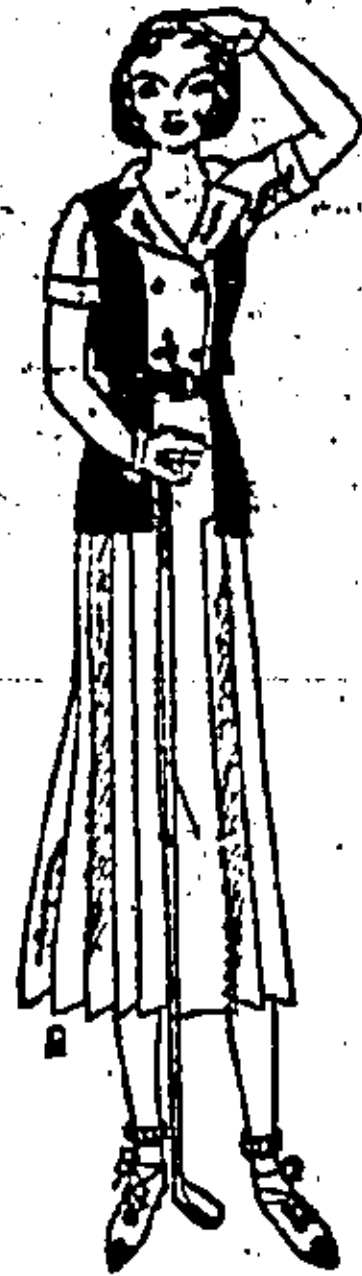

"Now that the world knows her income she has to be guarded day and night against kidnappers. We are terrified that some one might try to take her away. She is in New York, and every care is being taken of her."

THE NEW NECKLINE.

A touch of sparkle is a delightful addition to the new simple evening gowns, according to Wynne Gibson, the Paramount film star.

Miss Gibson adds her sparkling note in the form of two brilliant rings on a black velvet gown. The neckline is somewhat new and smart in its treatment. Wide velvet bands are brought up from the centre waist at the back and joined to the pointed front bodice with the rings, giving a wide boat-shaped effect.

The gown is most simply cut falling to the ground in a full flare, and it is moulded over the hips by the means of minute pin-tucks.

MILLINERY LAST WORDS.

Gold And Silver Hand Embroidery.

The newest trimming for hats of distinction is a design of gold and silver hand embroidery. A single fern leaf of silver and gold work was the only decoration on a cone-like cap of white silk elastic.

Macrame thread is used on the orandie hats of summer. It resembles braiding and gives firmness to this diaphanous fabric. In fact, the macrame thread and organdie white hat with a narrow Peterham ribbon round the crown is the last note in summer "tailored" headgear, and will be smart enough for a quiet day at Ascot.

Quilled caps are most attractive in two shades, blue and pink or biscuit and brown. Coq's quills are stuck on to tulle.

These small caps and hats of transparent tulle and net look equally well with hand-stitched straw embroidery or lace lines and a stiffened lace edge. By the way, the veil now appears only as a stiffened edge or as floating drapery.

Another cap is in white celtage and is of a curious semi-cone shape, with a front trimming of one velvet camilla and black velvet and circ.

Female Form For Summer

Natural Lines Now Acknowledged.

Regarding the female form, here is the season's maxim: Build on a firm foundation, but let it be controlled.

In centuries to come, when some scribe sits down to record the fashions of the past, he will undoubtedly recognize ours as a period which contributed something concrete in the development of the figure. We are establishing an ideal of our own. First we are acknowledging the beauty of a natural bust line. Who does not recall the harnessed forms of a few years ago, that aimed at "being boyish"? To-day we have no fear being our sex.

We have our own slim ideals, which do not include distortions brought about by whalebones and laces. The less boning the better, say corsetiers; upon such pronouncement they produce supple garments whose only claim to disciplinary measures, employed to rule

Developing Your Muscles

Beauty Exercises Which Improve Looks.

Arm flinging, arm-stretching, ball-punching and deep-breathing are all useful exercises for expanding the chest and strengthening the muscles of the arms. They are simple movements, and therefore need not be described in detail, but it is important that they should be done near an open window. The ball-punching should be done quickly and vigorously. If you haven't a ball to practise on, suspend a pillow in an open doorway and use this instead. Remember that both arms should be exercised to the same extent, and that in all these exercises they should be fully stretched.

Better Legs.

Leg development can be speedily ensured by means of the following exercises:—

(1) Stand upright with your hands on your hips, then raise your left leg straight in front of you (so that as far as possible it is in line with the knee), swing it sideways (still keeping it at the same level), and then bring it down sharply to the ground, bringing the heels together. It is most important that the knee should be kept quite straight throughout this exercise and that the body should remain upright. Repeat the movement several times with each leg.

(2) Raise the left leg slowly upward (knee bent) until the thigh is at right angles to the body and the toe pointing to the ground. Then stretch the leg forward until the knee is straight. Bring the leg back to the knee-bent position, and then repeat with each leg.

Sports.

Outdoor exercises which develop the arms, chest and legs are swimming, rowing and cycling, and any woman who is under-developed should take up one or more of these sports.

A good head exercise which develops the muscles of the neck and also improves the shoulders and chest is as follows:—

Press the head and neck strongly backwards, keeping the chin well in and lifting the chest. Bring the head back to the erect position.

THE "BOTTLE" BABY PROBLEM.

Eliminating Digestive Disturbances.

Do bottle-fed babies get enough to eat? Usually when an infant has to be fed in this manner there is much discussion as to whether milk or baby foods in powder form should be given and what is best.

The problem is one that causes parents more bother and anxiety than almost any other, for if the baby is to grow into a strong, healthy child there must be as little digestive disturbance and disorder as possible.

Perhaps it is best to seek advice in the first instance from your own medical man who is most likely to know the type of food for your type of infant.

NOVELTY EARRINGS.

Forward tilted hats have been the means of introducing a new earring, which has a double pearl stud, one stud being against the front of the ear and the second at the back. This is more attractive than the single pearl, with screw showing behind ear.

Slimming belts of angel-skin are more popular than diets. They are said to make the fat fly by a secret massage movement.

CULBERTSON
ON CONTRACT

(By ELY CULBERTSON)
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

COUNTING THE HANDS.

One mark of an expert player is the skill which he is able, after a few plays, to determine the distribution of the suits in the hands of his adversaries. To a novice this process appears, perhaps, complicated, but actually it is very simple. Beginning with the Opening lead, each play and each subsequent lead adds something to the information that is available for every player around the table. The good player and the expert make use of this knowledge frequently to the discomfiture of their adversaries in making what would appear otherwise to be an impossible contract.

An example of accurate card counting is given in the hand below:

East—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
North-South—20.

North:—
Spades A, J, 9, 3, 2.
Hearts J, 6.
Diamonds J, 5, 4.
Clubs A, J, 8.

West:—
Spades K, Q, 8, 4.
Hearts 10, 8, 5, 2.
Diamonds 8, 6, 3.
Clubs 7, 2.

South:—
Spades 7, 6.
Hearts K, 4.
Diamonds A, 7, 2.
Clubs K, 10, 9, 6, 5, 3.

South:—
Spades 10, 5.
Hearts A, Q, 9, 7, 3.
Diamonds K, Q, 10, 9.
Clubs Q, 4.

After rather spirited bidding,
South became the eventual declarer at a contract of four clubs, which was a game contract with a part-score. East had opened the bidding with a heart, and so, in response to that bid, West opened the heart deuce. East won with the Ace, and returned the diamond King, which South refused to win, and East then made his safest play—the return of a small heart.

At this point South had quite accurate information regarding the distribution of the heart suit. West's Opening lead probably indicated four, so East must have held five. Inasmuch as South did not fear a ruff, his next play was to lead a spade.
West played the Queen, and the trick was won in the Dummy with the Ace. South now returned to his own hand with the King of trumps, and led his remaining spade. West won with the King, and East played the Ten. The drop of the Ten on the second round of spades probably indicated that West had held four spades originally, and East only two. The Declarer dismissed the thought that East might be false-carding, as West, knowing there was another spade outstanding, if he held only three, would feel compelled to lead a spade rather than return a dia-

'ASPRO'

THE WORLD'S GREATEST ANTIDOTE AGAINST FEVER

THE main thing with fever is quick action at inception to reduce the temperature and arrest development. "ASPRO" eliminates feverish conditions because of its anti-pyretic (fever reducing) propensities. It quickly reduces the high temperature and allays developments. "ASPRO" is far ahead of quinine because after ingestion in the system, it is a powerful germicide or germ destroyer. It does not in any way harm the heart or stomach. For Dengue, Malaria, Ague or fever of any kind, simply take two tablets every two hours until the fever abates and the pain ceases. "ASPRO" reduces temperature within 15 minutes.

From China.

C.M.S., Mienchuchien,
Szechwan, W. CHINA,
Feb. 16th, 1932.

Dear Sirs,
You will be glad to know that I find "ASPRO" very useful here for MALARIA, COLDS and LOW FEVERS to which the Chinese are very subject.

Many of the Chinese are attacked by minor ailments and come to me frequently suffering from COUGHS, COLDS, INFLUENZA and BAD HEADACHES as the result of drenching rain and wet clothes. A timely dose of "ASPRO" saves them from attacks of fever and often when travelling in places where there is no medical aid, many people depend on us for help in sickness.

I cannot speak too well of "ASPRO" because of the very great relief it gives to suffering humanity in this part of the World. Almost every day someone in this large community needs help and I can always depend on "ASPRO" to give the relief they so much need. — Yours truly,

(MISS) M. ARMFIELD.

'ASPRO' WORKS WONDERS FOR MALARIA

Gladstone,
Queensland.

Gentlemen,
I think it is up to me to let you know how I have benefited by "ASPRO." Ever since 1910 I have been a martyr to MALARIA FEVER, having contracted same in Rhodesia, German East Africa and the Straits Settlements.

I came to Australia from the latter country five years ago, and for mond through the Knave in Dummy. West, after winning the spade trick, led a diamond. A small diamond was played from Dummy, and East played the 9,

the Declarer winning with the Ace. This confirmed South's count of the spades. West had held four spades originally, and East had held two. Both East and West were known to have held at least one club, and East was marked with diamond strength not weaker than King-Queen-Ten.

The only possible remaining losing tricks for the Declarer were now one diamond and a trump. However, East's play of the diamond 9 had marked him with four diamonds, two spades, which he had already played, and five hearts. Therefore, he must have held originally also two clubs. The Declarer, up to that time, had been uncertain of the distribution of the club suit, and tract.

had speculated on the possibility of finding three clubs in the West hand. Due to his accurate count of the hand, however, he now led clubs. When West followed suit, he refused to finesse and captured East's Queen. He thus was able to discard his losing diamond on Dummy's established spade and fulfill his contract, the success of which would have been extremely improbable if he had not taken the trouble to establish the distribution of the suits in the hands of the opponents.

To-day's Pointer.

While there are many hands up which a distributional count is not necessary, the Contract student will find it advantageous to make a practice of attempting to determine the distribution of the suits in the hands at the table, as practice in this regard frequently means the difference between making and losing a con-

'ASPRO' ONLY Medicine Beneficial for Malaria.

Brisbane,

May 7th, 1930.
I think I would be neglectful in my duty as a citizen and one who is a returned man if I did not tell you of the benefits that I have found in the use of "ASPRO" Tablets.

I served in the 5th Light Horse for a period of four years and four months,
through the Sinai Desert, Palestine, and Syria campaigns, and when in the Jordan Valley I contracted malarial fever. Since I have returned I have had several attacks, and after trying all different remedies prescribed, have found that none has given me relief.

I have lately found that "ASPRO" Tablets is the only medicine which has any way been beneficial, and I can honestly recommend them to any pals who served in the A.I.F., and had the misfortune to add malaria to their disabilities.

This testimonial has not in any way been solicited, and being in business at present I do not wish my name published, but give the above voluntarily, in the earnest wish that others may benefit by "ASPRO".

MAIL REVIEW

"THE GOLDEN WEST"—KING'S THEATRE.

George O'Brien who is featured in "The Golden West" now showing at the King's Theatre, portrays the first dual role of his career.

The story tells of a romance that was halted by a family feud but which is rekindled by the succeeding generation.

Action of the old rip-roaring days of the golden West are seen together with Redskin raids on lonely caravans.

George O'Brien plays opposite Helen Chandler, his leading lady in many films, who also plays a dual role in the film.

The picture is recommended to those in search of a good story with plenty of action.

MAIL REVIEW

"FAST WORKERS"—QUEEN'S THEATRE.

John Gilbert, one of the most famous lovers the silent and talkie screens have ever known, is seen in an entirely new role in "Fast Workers," now showing at the Queen's Theatre.

A romantic episode on the ground leads to an emnity between two rivet experts on a giant building under construction.

Thrilling scenes of men walking the girders at dizzy heights handling rivet guns as if they were water pistols, and a swift-moving story lead to a powerful climax during a death struggle, when one of the men falls to his death.

John Gilbert and Robert Armstrong play their respective parts well, while Mae Clarke is convincing and amusing in her portrayal of a lady of questionable reputation.

The picture is recommended to those in search of a good story with plenty of action.

WHAT BRITISH ANALYST Says about

'ASPRO'

Eminent Analyst's Report

55a, Great Dover St., LONDON, S.E.1.

31st October, 1924.

I have, during the past few months, made an exhaustive examination of a number of the best-known brands of Aspirin Tablets, and have, at the request of Nicholas Pty. Ltd., made a careful examination of "ASPRO." As a result of these examinations, I have to report, after 10 individual tests, I find that no single Tablet of "ASPRO" contains any trace of free Salicylic Acid.

I find the weight of the Tablets very uniform, and that they have been made by some process which, contrary to the general practice, does not cause decomposition and consequent liberation for free Salicylic Acid. All other processes of Aspirin Tablet manufacture with which I am acquainted turn out Tablets which are liable to contain, and do frequently contain, free Salicylic Acid.

States That People Who Cannot Take Ordinary Aspirin Can Take "ASPRO." "ASPRO" Effective Where Others Fail.

Non-Toxic Value Appreciated.

Scotland, 29th August, 1928.

Dear Sirs,

I am writing to let you know of my experience with 'ASPRO'. While I have made no chemical tests the CLINICAL RESULTS FULLY SUBSTANTIATE YOUR CLAIMS OF EXTREME PURITY. I have found that people who could not take ordinary ASPIRIN Owing to the GASTRIC UPSET IT CAUSED READILY TOLERATED 'ASPRO'. Also doses of 'ASPRO' are effective where similar doses of Aspirin are not. It has, also, taken at night, a mild hypnotic effect which is very valuable considering its non-toxic character.

If you will send me samples for general use I shall have pleasure in distributing them to certain of my patients.

Yours faithfully, F.S. (M.B., Ch. B.) (Name withheld for professional reasons.)

A French mono-rail car is reported to have travelled at a speed of 106 miles an hour in a test at Le Mans, thereby exceeding the previous best speed attained by a similar German invention of 99 miles an hour. The test was carried out on the line from Le Mans to Brest.

After being exhibited the mono-rail car may be put into regular service.

A Gown Problem

Mr. Arnold Lunn is already known as a champion skier, a novelist, and the inventor of a new card game, Auction Picquet. He has now added to these sidelines the role of preacher, and recently addressed the Anglo-Catholics of Oxford.

On his last visit he preached in the University Church of St. Mary. Mr. Lunn, who is not a clergyman, asked what he should wear.

"Any foreign doctor's robes you like," he was told.

"But I haven't any foreign doctorate,"

"Oh, then your ordinary M.A. gown."

"But I'm not an M.A."

"Well, a B.A. gown will do."

"I'm afraid I was ploughed and never took a degree."

"That is awkward. I suppose you'll have to wear your ordinary scholar's gown."

"I never won a scholarship."

So Mr. Lunn preached from Cranmer's pulpit attired in one of the gowns worn by undergraduates in Hall.

A Colonel's Books

A famous library gathered by an interesting man was being dispersed at a New York sale room recently.

Life has always been a great adventure for the seller Colonel Isham. After leaving Cornell and Yale, he scrambled all over the world in pursuit of big game till the war came to give him the greatest adventure of all.

He did not wait for President Wilson to make up his mind, but joined the British Army and served for three years, becoming a lieutenant-colonel. He is also a C.B.E.

Colonel Isham's book-collecting became intensive after the war.

Dr. Johnson's Club Project Johnson, Boswell, Mrs. Piozzi and others of the famous circle were well represented among the books that came under the hammer. They include the copy of the "Life of Johnson" which Boswell inscribed to Wilkes and in which Wilkes made scores of notes and corrections.

There is Mrs. Piozzi's copy of Johnson's "Rasselas," breathing in all her comments the devotion she felt for its author. After the words "The End" she has written "of a Book unrivalled in Excellence of Intention, in Elegance of Diction, in minute knowledge of human Life, and sublime expression of Oriental Imagery."

A letter tinged with the melancholy and loneliness of Johnson's last days is that addressed to Mrs. Piozzi, in which he deplores "the wearisome solitude of the long evenings," which suggests to him "the convenience of a club in my neighbourhood, but I have been hindered from attending to it by want of breath." If I can complete the scheme you shall have the names and regulations.

Facts You Did Not Know

The Italian state railways have estimated that motor trucks have taken about one tenth of their freight business, causing a loss of $20,000,000.

To protect country homes from burglars a searchlight has been invented that is switched on from inside a house and moved around the eaves on tracks.

Chemically prepared cards, paper and ink have been invented with which signs can be printed with rubber stamps in white lettering on dark backgrounds.

According to a German scientist recent earthquakes in Holland have been due to the dam that has been built to cut the Zuider Zee from the North Sea.

A new electric ventilator that can be installed in any window allows and washes air before admitting it to a room at a rate of 6000 cubic feet a minute.

THE ARITHMETICAL CALCULATION BRITAIN'S SYSTEM "A SUBLIME MUDDLE"

PRESSING NEED FOR CHANGE

(By The Late Arnold Bennett.)

The third volume of Arnold Bennett's "Journals" has just been published. Critics are once more exclaiming at the prodigious breadth of his interests. One of those interests was the metric system of currency, weights and measures, which Bennett thought Britain should adopt. Before his death he prepared an article on the subject—an article brimming over with the vitality which made his style unique.

If you want to make any sort of arithmetical calculation—in money, weights, or measures—the French decimal (or metric) system is the acme of simplicity.

It is so simple that a philosopher or even a Cabinet Minister could comprehend it in five minutes and completely learn it in an hour. It is almost too simple to be believed. The franc is the chief unit of money, the metre the chief unit of length, the square metre the chief unit of area, the kilogram the chief unit of weight, and the litre the chief unit of capacity or volume.

All these measures are divided or multiplied by tens or hundreds or thousands. Arithmetic is scarcely necessary. If you have to multiply a number by 10 you stick a nought at the end of it. If you have to divide a number by 10 you stick a decimal point in front of the final numeral. And there you are.

The French System

A French schoolboy does not have to undergo a long course of study in this great daily indispensable field of knowledge. The system is shown to him, or perhaps he seizes it for himself. He comprehends it without headache or tears. He begins at once to employ it. He cannot conceivably forget it.

The principle of the French system is employed in every country in Europe save two. These two are Russia and Great Britain. As to Russia, I will say nothing, because, like most people, I know nothing. As to Great Britain, I will say something. But before proceeding I ought to warn the timid, the frangible, and those afflicted with a weak heart on no account to read what follows: the consequences might be calamitous and perhaps fatal.

Let us start with L.S.D. Now in the French system there is the franc and the centime (100 centimes to the franc), and that's all. In Great Britain there are two farthings to the halfpenny and two half-pennies to the penny. So far the system is regular. But there are 12 pence to the shilling. And then, by way of further change, there are 20 shillings to the pound.

There is also the guinea, frequently used. If a Briton owes his doctor or his lawyer 18½ guineas, not one Briton in 100 could count out the money or write a cheque for the sum without first making a calculation on a bit of paper.

Think of it. To cope with our monetary system we are forced to employ a device known as compound division, subtraction, addition, etc., which all of us learn with acute pain at school, and very many of us forget after leaving school—especially compound division. Hundreds of thousands of sane persons living in Britain at this moment, if they were asked to calculate the tenth part of £9 18s. 6d., simply could not do it. They would have to get somebody else to do it for them.

Weights and Measures. But L.S.D. is as easy as A.B.C. compared to our weights and measures. As every schoolboy has forgotten, we have three different measures of weight: apothecaries', used by chemists; Troy, used by dealers in precious metals; and avoirdupois, used by plain persons for such matters as soap, dynamite, and human beings.

The apothecaries' ounce is divided into 480 grains. But the avoirdupois ounce is divided into 437½ grains. I dare not give still more horrible details. Let it suffice that the tragic fun runs on.

Even considered alone, avoirdupois weight is well contrived to fill lunatic asylums. Sixteen drams of it make an ounce and 16 ounces a pound. But 14 pounds make a stone (except at Smithfield Market, where eight pounds make a stone—yes, this is a fact!). One hundred and twelve pounds are needed to make a hundredweight, and then we jump to 20 hundredweights to make a ton.

As for Troy weight, I will only remark that though generally speaking the ounce is divided into 20 pennyweights or 480 grains, for gold and silver the ounce is divided only into tenths, and not into pennyweights or grains.

In measures of length the inch is multiplied by 12 to make a foot, but the foot by only three to make a yard, while to make a rod the yard is multiplied by 5½. I might continue ad infinitum. In fact, I have so far touched merely the fringe of the astounding curiosities of British weights and measures.

The objections to all this rich confusion, sublime muddle and total lack of rational system are threefold.

The first objection is moral. The British methods of calculating, weighing and measuring are silly and utterly behind the times—a century or so behind the times. Everybody knows this to be true, and nobody can deny the same. It must be morally harmful for a nation to go on obstinately clinging to such methods in the face of all reason. A man who is conscious of continually acting like a fool cannot respect himself.

The second objection is a national objection. British methods involve a serious loss of time in the education of the young, and we have no time to lose in the education of the young. Already the pressure of school subjects is extremely severe, and in the curriculum many subjects are performed ignored because the day is too short.

The third objection is international. British methods involve an unnecessary friction in the great affair of international trade. Foreigners cannot comprehend them, and quite rightly, refuse to try to comprehend them, and even if they tried would fail to comprehend them.

Suppose, for instance, that a Briton wants to sell 100lb. of a commodity to a Frenchman. The Frenchman inquires: "How much is 100lb.?" The Briton looks up the figures in a book and replies: "One hundred pounds is exactly 45,359,234,7,000,000 kilograms." The Frenchman performs his natural gesture of shrugging his shoulders and says: "But I require a round number of kilograms." "Ah!" retorts the Briton. "I don't know anything about that. I quote a price for a round number of pounds."

Husband Keeps House While Wife Works.

Prague.
A strange story of modern family life was related in a court at Olomouc recently when a wife sued her husband for throwing her out of the house.

The husband, it was related, had lost his job, and the wife had found one. So the husband took over the housework, looked after the children and did the "cooking" while the wife paid for the house and home. But she insisted that this fact gave her all the rights appertaining to the "Head of the House," including that of going out to entertainments in the evening.

She complained to the court that her husband beat her if she came home late. And his defence was that he was "only exercising the rights" of a "house-husband." (Reuter)

The China Mail

Hong Kong, Saturday, June 24, 1933.

The Chinese Eastern Railway.

Repeated Chinese protests against the proposed sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway have at last produced a reply from Moscow, but it is unlikely that the reply will prove satisfactory to the Nanking Government. Reports of Soviet troop concentrations near the Manchurian frontier have been received more frequently of late but the significance, if any, of these movements cannot be estimated at this juncture. The report that Russia has offered to sell to Japan its interests in the Chinese Eastern Railway would seem at first glance to indicate a complete reversal of Russian policy in Manchuria. Its sale, however, would not represent such a sacrifice on the part of Russia as might appear, since events have served to reduce greatly its military and political importance, although increasing enormously its commercial value. Indeed, "the Soviet's offer" implies Moscow's military helplessness in the Far East. This is known by Japan, which is unlikely to pay a big price, nor will Moscow's gesture of conciliation necessarily deter Japan from eventually claiming and occupying on Manchukuo's behalf, Siberia's eastern maritime provinces," states the Diplomatic Correspondent of the London "Daily Telegraph." The Manchurian railways were originally constructed as the result of an agreement, made in 1896, between China and the Russo-Chinese Bank, an institution promoted the previous year specially for the purpose of developing Russian interests in the Far East. The Chinese Eastern Railway Co. was formed as a subsidiary to construct and run the line; the surveys were immediately proceeded with, and Harbin was established as the centre of operations. The company's operations, in addition, had to do with very much more than railways; for it also possessed the right to carry on mining, to run mills, to control posts and telegraphs, together with other important privileges, as well as general administrative power over the zone under its control, all of which increased greatly its strategic value. The Manchurian system thus built up was essential to Russia's policy in the Far East which, being primarily political and strategic, aimed at acquiring an ice-free port for a strong naval base. Port Arthur was the port chosen, and with it

CHURCH WHERE GIPSIES CAMPED

Stirring History Of Holborn Building.

CELLAR SERVICES.

One of the few churches with more men than women in the congregation is in need of repair. It is the Church of St. Alban the Martyr, Holborn, and the vicar, the Rev. R. Eves, hopes to have it restored before the end of this year in commemoration of the centenary of the Oxford Movement.

Although the church was built as recently as 1863, it has had an eventful history.

Father Eves said recently. "It may seem strange that a church so recently built should be already in need of repair, but like other contemporary churches, it was built of the wrong kind of stone.

"To carry out the necessary restoration, I hope to get another £2,500 by the end of this year.

"The site on which the Church stands was once a gipsy encampment, and the church itself had its first being in a cellar, where the first ceremonies were held.

"The first steps towards building the church were taken about 1858. The parish of Holborn was then densely populated, but undivided. John Gellibrand Hubbard, a director of the Bank of England, wanted to build another church, but the neighbourhood seemed to be too densely populated to make this possible.

"Hotbed of Crime."

"It happened that at the time the second Lord Leigh had inherited some property there. Like all similar property, it had been let and sublet, and he had no personal knowledge of its condition. Actually, it was one of the greatest hotbeds of crime in London, but he made it over for the purpose of building the church.

"Incidentally, the character of the neighbourhood has not greatly altered. Among my thousands of parishioners are many young boys who have either been in or are going in to prison. Only the other Sunday three were arrested after my sermon. But I love them all just the same.

"Within five years the number of baptisms rose from 295 to 417; of marriages from five to 22; of Easter Communicants from 291 to 569; and the collections from £541 to £1,884.

"The Mixed Chalice, Unleavened Bread, Lights, White Linen and Silk Vestments and Incense were introduced by the first vicar, Father Mackonochie.

"A storm of protest and opposition followed. The church's supporters were styled 'Papists in disguise.'

"One of the main issues of dispute was the matter of baptism. A huge parchment was laid along the aisle and nave of the church to be signed by those in favour, as a protest against the persecution. This dispute was referred to as the 'Gorham Judgment.' The portest has since been removed to the library at Lambeth Palace.

Died on Mountain.

"In the end, as the services of to-day bear witness, Father Mackonochie won his fight. He himself died on a mountain in Scotland, having been almost driven mad by persecution. The wood on which shepherds bore his body down to be buried has since been made into a cross and now hangs in the church.

"The following contemporary verse refers to the dispute over the matter of ritual:

Stanton, with hyacinthine box,

Bore a portable confession-box.

While "Father Mac" in a purple vest,

Was looking his very illegal.

"Stanton was one of Father Mackonochie's companions in the restoration of the church.

BRILLIANT VISCOUNT KNEBWORTH

Big Loss To Amateur Athletics.

FOUGHT BILLINGS-GATE PORTER AND LOST.

London. The House of Commons lost one of its most promising recruits, and amateur athletics a brilliant all-round sportsman by the tragic death of Viscount Knabworth, who lost his life in an aeroplane crash. Lord Knabworth, who was elected for the Hitchin Division at the general election, quickly made his mark in Parliament and at the age of 29 was serving as Parliamentary private secretary to Mr. Duff Cooper, the Financial Secretary to the War Office. The post of "P.P.S." (as it is commonly known) to a Minister often serves as the stepping stone to higher Parliamentary rank, and there was every indication that Lord Knabworth had a big political future before him.

As an athlete he proved himself a brilliant performer in half a dozen branches of sport. When at Eton he won honours at both cricket and Rugby football, playing scrum half for the college. It was as an amateur boxer, however, that he was most prominent. After winning the Eton welterweight championship he gained his Boxing Blue at Magdalen College, Oxford. On leaving the University he became a well-known figure in charity boxing contests. On one occasion he fought a Billingsgate porter but lost, while in another contest he defeated a policeman on points in four rounds. "He is certainly a hitter," Alf Mancini, his professional sparring partner once said. "He has a stinging straight fight and he takes as much punishment as he gives. I hit him just as hard as I should hit a professional."

In winter sports Lord Knabworth was equally famous, and he won many skiing contests at Murren in Switzerland.

A good story is told of a practical joke which he played at Murren in 1924, when he won the Khandaiah Cup. Entering the contest under the name of "Martha Mainwaring," he turned up attired as a sports girl completely deceiving the spectators who were amazed at the extraordinary turn of speed with which "she" displayed.

Lord Knabworth's intellectual achievements were not one whit behind his sporting prowess, and he gained scholastic triumphs both at Eton and Oxford. It was, however, as a sportsman that he came most in the public eye.

In recent years he had taken aviation up with zest and not so long ago had a thrilling escape when he had to make a forced landing in his Moth aeroplane.

DWINDLING RANKS OF THE I.L.P.

Mr. Wallhead Leaves The Party.

DISAGREES WITH POLICY.

London. The attenuated ranks of the Independent Labour Party in the House of Commons have suffered a further diminution by the defection of Mr. R. C. Wallhead, M.P. In the early days of the present Parliament the I.L.P. group mustered five, but since then they have been going rather the way of the "Ten little nigger boys." The thunderous-voiced Mr. Kirkwood soon seceded to the Official Labour Party and "then there were four." These were Mr. Maxton (of the long black hair, who looks as if he had been transported straight from the days of the French Revolution), Mr. Buchanan, Mr. McGovern (who was once forcibly ejected from the House after one of the most disorderly scenes ever witnessed in Parliament), and last Mr. Wallhead. And so "Now there are three."

In announcing his resignation from the I.L.P., Mr. Wallhead explains that he disagrees with the revolutionary policy advocated at the I.L.P. Conference at Derby.

The I.L.P., he says, broke with the Official Labour Party, not because it had abandoned its belief in Parliament, but because it considered that the Labour Party had shown weakness in applying its own programme in Parliament. "The Derby Conference," he says, "relegated political action to the background and set up in its place the theory of physical force revolution. All my life I have steadfastly opposed the idea of physical force revolution." Such a policy, he says, would only lead to suffering for the working classes and could not have any possible hope of ultimate success.

Mr. Wallhead had been a member of the National Council of the I.L.P. for twenty years and was its Chairman from 1920 to 1923. —Reuter.

PATIENT CONTROLS DENTIST.

Remote Control For Drill Operation.

BOON TO THE NERVOUS

Atlantic City, New Jersey. A gadget on a dentist's chair which gives the patient control over the drilling going on in his mouth was introduced to the New Jersey Dental Association recently.

The patient holds the fixture in his hand and when the drill begins to hurt he presses a button. This stops the drill whether the dentist likes it or not.

"The remote control has this advantage," explained the inventor to a group of skeptical practitioners clustered around the exhibit. "It enables the dentist to render services pleasantly and it enables the nervous patient to keep calm through the knowledge that he can stop the drill at any time."

"The patient with the confidence inspired by having the remote control in his hands screws up so much moral courage that he can stand much more pain than he could without it. We really find that the dentist can do more work when the patient has control. You would be surprised."

"I would be surprised indeed," remarked a cynical dentist in the group. —Reuter.

SENIORITAS AS TAXI DRIVERS.

Beauty-Driven Vehicles For Madrid.

Madrid. Taxicabs are likely to become extremely popular here before long.

A number of dark-eyed señoritas, selected for their good looks, are soon to be seen plying taxis for hire along Madrid streets.

They are now busily engaged in studying every mechanical phase of their new job so that they will be ready for any emergency. They accept no help if anything goes wrong, no matter how gallant it is proffered.

In male-driven taxis the notice "No Tips" is displayed and it has been suggested that "No Compliments" should adorn the new temporary of Henry VIII. —Reuter.

To-Day's Short Story.

MY ADVENTURE IN NORFOLK

By A. J. Alan.

I DON'T know how it is with you, but during February my wife generally says to me: "Have you thought at all about what we are going to do for August?" And, of course, I say, "No," and then she begins looking through the advertisements of bungalows to let.

Well, this happened last year, as usual, and she eventually produced one that looked possible. It said: "Norfolk—Hickling Broad—Furnished Bungalow—Garden—Garage, Bathhouse," and all the rest of it—Oh—and plate and linen. It also mentioned an exorbitant rent. I pointed out the bit about the rent, but my wife said: "Yes, you'll have to go down and see the landlord, and get him to come down. They always do." As a matter of fact, they always don't, but that's a detail.

Anyway, I wrote off to the landlord and asked if he could arrange for me to stay the night in the place to see what it was really like. He wrote back and said: "Certainly," and that he was engaging Mrs. Selston and So to come in and "oblige me," and make up the beds and so forth.

I tell you, we do things thoroughly in our family—I have to sleep in all the beds, and when I come home my wife counts the bruises and decides whether they will do or not.

At any rate, I arrived, in a blinding snowstorm, at about the most desolate spot on God's earth. I'd come to Potter Heigham by train, and been driven on—it was a good five miles from the station). Fortunately, Mrs. Selston, the old lady who was going to "do" for me, there, and she'd lighted a fire, and cooked me a steak, for which I was truly thankful.

I somehow think the cow, or whatever, they get steaks off, had only died that morning. It was very—er—obscene. While I dined, she talked to me. She would tell me all about an operation her husband had just had. All about it. It was almost a lecture on "surgery." The steak was rather underdone, and it sort of made me feel I was illustrating her lecture. Anyway, she put me clean off my dinner, and then departed for the night.

I explored the bungalow and just had a look outside. It was, of course, very dark, but not snowing quite so hard. The garage stood about fifteen yards from the back door. I walked round it but didn't go in. I also went down to the edge of the broad, and verified the boat.

MURDERED IN LAW COURT.

Prisoner Shot Before Trial Begins.

Belgrade. Just as Blazko Miranovitch, escorted by warders, was entering the police court at Podgoritza (Montenegro) to be tried for murder, he fell deadshot through the heart.

He had been killed by the brother of the man for whose murder he was to have been tried. "I have neither been able to sleep or work since my brother's death," the assassin said calmly. "But how I am satisfied, even if I have to die. The blot on my family honour is wiped out." —Reuter.

FAMOUS FISH DIES AT 113 YEARS.

Young Blood Compared With Lake-Mates.

Paris. Death, at the ripe old age of 113, has claimed one of the famous carp in the lake at Fontainebleau.

The exact age of this aquatic centenarian was proved by a gold ring which was attached to it and on which was inscribed the date of its birth.

But the deceased fish might almost be termed a "young blood" compared with some of its brethren in the lake.

Some of its fish are reputed to date back to the days of Francis I. The "First of France" who came to the throne in 1515 and was a contemporary of Henry VIII. of England. —Reuter.

house. The whole place looked as though it might be all right in the summer-time, but just then it made one wonder why people ever wanted to go to the North Pole.

Anyhow, I went indoors, and settled down by the fire. You've no idea how quiet it was; even the waterfowl had taken a night off—at least, they weren't working.

At a few minutes to eleven I heard the first noise there'd been since Mrs. Selston's name—Selston—had cleared out. It was the sound of a car. If it had gone straight by I probably shouldn't have noticed it at all, only it didn't go straight by; it seemed to stop farther up the road, before it got to the house. Even that didn't make much impression. After all, cars do stop.

It must have been five or ten minutes before it was borne in on me that it hadn't gone on again. So I got up and looked out of the window. It had left off snowing, and there was a glare through the gate that showed that there were headlamps somewhere just out of sight. I thought I might as well stroll out and investigate.

I found a fair-sized limousine pulled up in the middle of the road about twenty yards short of my gate. The light was rather blinding, but when I got close to it I found a girl with the bonnet open, tinkering with the engine. Quite an attractive young female, from what one could see, but she was so muffled up in furs that it was rather hard to tell.

MONDAY'S STORY.

Monday's story will be "THE FLAW," by Alice Herbert.

I said: "Er—good evening—anything I can do?"

She said she didn't know what was the matter. The engine had just stopped, and wouldn't start again. And it had! It wouldn't even turn, either with the self-starter or the handle. The whole thing was awfully hot, and I asked her whether there was any water in the radiator.

She didn't see why there shouldn't be, there always had been. This didn't strike me as entirely conclusive. I said, we'd better put some in, and see what happened.

She said, why not use snow? But I thought not. There was an idea at the back of my mind that there was some reason why it was unwise to use melted snow, and it wasn't until I arrived back with a bucketful that I remembered what it was. Of course—goitre.

When I got back to her she'd got the radiator cap off, and inserted what a Danish friend of mine calls a "funeral." We poured a little water in. . . . Luckily I'd warned her to stand clear.

The first tablespoonful that went in came straight out again, red hot, and blew the "funeral" sky-high. We waited a few minutes until things had cooled down a bit, but it was no go. As fast as we poured water in it simply ran out again into the road underneath. It was quite evident that she'd been driving with the radiator bone dry, and that her engine had seized right up.

I told her so. She said: "Does that mean I've got to stop here at night?"

I explained that it wasn't as bad as all that; that is, if she cared to accept the hospitality of my "poor roof" (and it was a poor roof—it let the wet in). But she wouldn't hear of it. By the by, she didn't know the—er—circumstances, so it wasn't that. No, she wanted to leave the car where it was and go on foot.

I said: "Don't be silly, it's miles to anywhere."

However, at that moment we heard a car coming along the road, the same way as she'd come. We could see its lights, too, although it was a very long way off. You know how flat Norfolk is—you can see a terrific distance.

I said: "There's the way out of all your troubles. This thing, whatever it is, will give you a tow to the nearest garage, or at any rate a lift to some hotel."

One would have expected her to show some relief, but she didn't. I began to wonder what she fully

BUT STILL CONFIDENT.

(By THE KID.)

Baseball fans are looking forward to to-morrow's game, at Caroline Hill with much enthusiasm. This game will probably decide the destiny of the League championship.Although South China, 1932 champions, have already lost one game to the Hong Kong Americans, there is no doubt that they will put up a much more stubborn fight in this game in order to keep their strongest opponents from getting too much of a lead on them.
South China are being strengthened by several old-timers.Hong Kong will pitch their star, Al Huebner, with Barros behind the bat. Several changes have been made in their line-up owing to injuries, but they are still confident that they will win.South China will probably have Bui Chang on the mound with Matty Chang catching.The probable line-ups for the game are:

H. K. Americans	S. China
Barros	c M. Chang
Huebner	p B. Chang
T. Leonard	1b T. Chan
D. Leonard	2b C. C. Leung
H. Biggs	ss T. Kim
Newell	3b H. Young
Gilson	lf B. Fung
Wright	cf C. Chung
Zafra	rf T. Fong

The Baseball League standing to date is as follows:

	W.	L.	%
Hong Kong	2	0	.1000
South China	1	1	.5000
Lingnam	0	0	.0000
American Navy	0	2	.0000

Lingnam University and South
China played a drawn game on June 11. This game is to be played off at the end of the League series.

REVISED SCHEDULE.

The Baseball schedule of League games to be played at Caroline Hill has been changed owing to the absence of the United States Navy and the examinations which are now taking place at Lingnam University.

The new schedule is as follows:

To-day	S. China	v	Hong Kong
July 1	Lingnam	v	S. China
July 2	H. Kong	v	Lingnam
July 8	Lingnam	v	H. Kong
July 9	S. China	v	Lingnam
July 15	H. Kong	v	U. S. Navy
July 16	S. China	v	U. S. Navy
July 18	U. S. Navy	v	Lingnam
July 20	Lingnam	v	U. S. Navy

TO-DAY'S PRACTICE.

There will be a practice game this afternoon at Caroline Hill between the U.S. Isabel and the South China combines. The game will tion fund for Larwood and Voce, announcing that two-thirds would be handed to Larwood and one-third to Voce.As soon as Larwood returned home he asked that the money should be divided equally.The Committee consented, and the fund reached about £800 the effect of Larwood's generous

OUT FOR SIXTH TITLE

From BRUCE HARRIS.

London, May 30.

MRS. HELEN WILLS MOODY came slowly to life in London to-day.She arrived unreasonably early—7.10 a.m. at Paddington from Plymouth, to be precise—and a full quarter of an hour later emerged from the sleeping car to find Mr.
H. Halim, of the Lawn Tennis Association, awaiting her in welcome.Her "suit" was of trim dark green; worn aslant on her head was what I, as a man, can only describe as a neat and complicated kind of tam-o'- shanter, with an ornamental button on the front. Altogether a very charming champion, smiling despite the 7 a.m. uprising.With her were her husband and Miss Virginia Rice, ranked Number
9 in American lawn tennis. Miss Rice also is here for Wimbledon.

Long London Stay

"I didn't think that at this hour anyone would come to meet me," she remarked. I asked her about her plans. She replied:"My husband and I are going to stay in London until after Wimbledon. I intend in the meanwhile to play in two London tournaments—singles as well as doubles—but which two I have not made up my mind."I did not defend my French championship title because doing so would have involved coming to Europe earlier than I wanted."There will, incidentally, be strong competition among tournament secretaries for Mrs. Moody's conquering racket. In the running are the meetings at Chiswick Park
(next week), St. George's Hill (Weybridge), Beckenham and Queen's Club. To-day Mr. C. R.Garnville, the Beckenham secretary, was at Paddington to remind her of the indisputable fact that Beckenham is a nice pleasant tournament to play in.I suggested to her that the talk of a meeting between her and Mlle. Lenglen was "all nonsense." She laughed and replied:"Well, certainly very complicated procedure would be necessary before such a match between an amateur and a professional could happen. If it were played at all it would have to be under correct auspices.

Miss Round As Opponent

"People who don't know tennis don't realise what an absence of eight years from competitive play, means. Mlle. Lenglen has been absent for that length of time. That's why I think that an extemporised match wouldn't be fair to her."I would love to play, of course, but all these difficulties make a meeting between us very doubtful."You ask about my tennis form. So far as I know it is all right. I had only about two months at home in California during the winter, and practised, as usual, with men opponents, though none was of world class."You tell me that Miss Dorothy Round is as likely as anyone to challenge me seriously, having beaten Mme. Mathieu and Miss Helen Jacobs. I can quite believe that because I know that Miss Round has got beautiful style and has developed her game on correct lines."Yes. This will be my bid for my sixth Wimbledon championship. I should dearly like to win it. In the meanwhile I intend to get plenty of practice at Wimbledon and elsewhere, and maybe do a little shopping."

MISS DORIS HUNT IN RELAY

WONG SIONG HING OUT OF CHINESE POLO TEAM

H.K.I.A.S. GALA TO-NIGHT

(By Crawl.)

THE chances of the Chinese representative Clubs in to-night's Hong Kong International Amateur Swimming Association's first gala have been strengthened by the withdrawal of the most promising civilian lady competitor, Miss Ena Allen, who has been compelled to make a last minute withdrawal.

Miss Doris Hunt will come into the "Y" Ladies relay team in place of Miss Allen, while Mrs. McMahon, a former lady Colony champion, will swim in the Ladies' 50 Yards Free Style.

Mrs. McMahon, although now not at the peak of her form, should give Miss Yeung Sau-king a good race.

The Chinese Clubs look very much like carrying off the majority of the events.

Shek Kam-pui and Tsang Ho-fook, two very good 100 yards men, will be seriously challenging H. Lange of the Y.M.C.A., while Miss Yeung Sau-king (S.C.A.A.), Miss Chan Yuk-fai (C.B.C.) and Miss Ng Yuet-kuen (C.S.B.S.) will be pitted against Mrs. McMahon in the Ladies 50 yards.

The outcome of this race will be very closely watched, for in spite of Mrs. McMahon's form, she is expected to offer the Chinese girls a very serious challenge.

Kwok and Record.

The Men's 100 yards Breast Stroke result is almost a foregone conclusion. Kwok Chun-hang (S.C.A.A.) is expected to set up a new bath record for the distance. The present record was established by W. Schreuder in 1932.

A. Morrison of the Y.M.C.A. is expected to win the Diving by a large majority of points. His nearest competitor will probably be Ho Siu-mo of the Chinese Bathing Club.

Spectators will be given a thrilling event just before the interval, when the Men's Team race takes place.

The Chinese Bathing Club, the European Y.M.C.A., South China, and the Civil Servants Swimming Club are the finalists.

On present form it looks very much like a hard tussle between the Chinese Bathing Club, the Y.M.C.A. and the Civil Service Club.

C.B.C. or the Y.M.C.A.

The former two are favourites for the first two places, but much will depend on the third men in each team to-night.

Leung Shui-man who is swimming last for the C. B. C. will be swimming against A. G. Donn of the Y. M. C. A. who holds the present bath record of 26 seconds.

The Men's 50 Yards Free Style, which is expected to be the best event on the programme, follows immediately after the interval.

In this event, Donn will again meet Leung Shui-man, and a thrilling race is expected. Shek Kam-pui of the Young Companions' Association is also in the event, but he will have to exceed his best performance to secure either the first or second places. He is almost assured of third place.

Mrs. Schreuder's Chance.

In the Ladies 100 Yards Breast Stroke, Mrs. A. C. Schreuder

C.B.C.:—

Water Polo: Combined Chinese v.

Combined Europeans:—

Chinese:—Wan Kwong-ting (Y.C.A.A.) and Lee Yee-long (S.C.A.A.);

Lau Yee-long (C.B.C.); Shek Kam-pui (Y.C.A.A.), Wong Siong-hing (University) and Cheong Wing-kwong (S.C.A.A.).

Europeans:—H. Angus (Y.M.C.A.); A. G. Donn (Y.M.C.A.)

and A. B. Grover (R.N.R.C.); E. W. Raitton (Y.M.C.A.); W. F. Kerr (Y.M.C.A.); W. Schreuder (Y.M.C.A.) and W. Campbell (Y.M.C.A.).

Mr. Ip Koon-jin, of the Colony Water Polo Sub-Committee, will referee the game.

CHINESE POLO TEAM HANDICAPPED

Wong Siong Hing, the well-known University swimmer, has had to make a last minute withdrawal from the Combined Chinese Water Polo team to-night. He was to have played centre forward. Leung Shui Man (Chinese B.C.) will probably take his place.

(Y.M.C.A.) and Miss Yeung Sau-king will meet once again, having previously done so at the South China Athletic Association's gala at North Point when the Chinese girl won by a narrow margin.

To-night's race will put an entirely different aspect on the result as Mrs. Schreuder will be at home in the bath and is used to swimming in fresh water.

Shek Kam-pui and Leung Shui-man meet again in the 50 Yards backstroke in which there is no European representative. It is expected that the former will win in good time.

"Y" Ladies Hopeful.

The Ladies' 200 yards team race will bring the actual swimming events to a close and it is surmised that this event will be one of the most thrilling in the evening's programme.

KWOK CHUN-HANG (S.C.A.A.)
(100 Yds. Breast Stroke)

The Y.M.C.A. have been compelled to change their team, but they have bright hopes of victory. Mrs. Schreuder, who has shown herself to be one of the most brilliant sprinters amongst the Colony's lady swimmers, will probably swim against Miss Yeung Sau-king in her team's fourth position.

Water Polo Event.

The final event will be the water polo game between the Combined Chinese and European teams.

The Chinese have improved their game tremendously within the last fortnight, and have a fair chance of winning to-night's game.

Schreuder, the "Y" skipper will probably captain the European team while W. F. Kerr (C.B.C.) will officiate for the Chinese.

Mr. Ip Koon-jin, of the Colony Water Polo Sub-Committee, will referee the game.

SHEK KAM-PU (Y.C.A.A.)
(100 Yds. and 50 Yds.
Back Stroke).

K.C.C. LADIES' SUPERIORITY WINS GAME

I.R.C. Mixed Doubles Team Lose.

"H. D." AGAIN SHINES

(By ACE.)

The superiority of the K. C. C. ladies in the Mixed Doubles League game against the I.R.C. yesterday at the K.C.C. cost the 1931 champions the match by 6½ sets to 2½.

In securing their first win in three games, one of which was drawn, the K. C. C. revealed much improved form to that the displayed against the L. R. C. Miss O. Dalziel was in splendid form as Teddy Fincher's partner, and it was a meritorious feat on the part of H. D. Rumjahn and his cousin, Miss Rose Rumjahn, to beat the K. C. C. 1 pair by 6-3. The home pair won their next two sets without the loss of a game.

Mrs. Hamby was also at her best and gave Ernie Fincher every support to secure three sets by convincing displays.

Miss Madge Griffiths, who arrived back in the Colony yesterday morning after a brief holiday, was not seen at her best, though she made several very fine shots at the net. She and Bertie Guest won 1½ sets.

Teddy Fincher again continued to show a big improvement. He is now staging a welcome comeback. Ernie Fincher served well and was steadier than on his last appearance. Guest was cautious throughout. If he would only let himself go on occasion he would be a far more dangerous opponent.

Sirdar Rumjahn, the Colony champion had an energetic match shielding Mrs. Kew, who has not yet got into her stride. He played well, but attempted too much. "H. D." his cousin, was clearly the best of the I.R.C. men, and received good support from his partner.

I. M. A. Razack played well, but he was poorly supported by Miss Gecks.

Scores:

E. C. Fincher and Miss O. Dalziel (K.C.C.):—
beat I. M. A. Razack and Miss Gecks 6-0 lost to H. D. Rumjahn and Miss R. Rumjahn 2-5 beat S. A. Rumjahn and Mrs. Kew 6-0

A. E. P. Guest and Miss M. Griffiths (K.C.C.):—
beat Razack and Miss Gecks 6-2 lost to Rumjahn and Miss Rumjahn 4-8 drew with Rumjahn and Mrs. Kew 6-6

E. F. Fincher and Mrs. B. B. Hamby (K.C.C.):—
beat Razack and Miss Gecks 6-3 beat Rumjahn and Miss Rumjahn 7-5 beat Rumjahn and Mrs. Kew 6-6

DUNLOP SHIELD HOLDERS' CLEAN SWEEP

Recreio Ladies' Fail Against Champions.

MRS. JAMES'S RETURN.

The United Services' Recreation Club, holders of the Dunlop Shield, secured an overwhelming win over the Club de Recreio in the Mixed Doubles League yesterday on the latter club's courts by 9 sets to 0. The winners played good tennis, and, although the scores in each case indicate a comfortable win, they were fully extended.

Mrs. James, who has just returned from America made a welcome re-appearance in the League, but she has yet to secure more practice on grass courts before she finds her true form.

Yesterday she was not quite certain of the bounce, having played a great deal on hard courts while on leave. The courts at the Recreio yesterday had not quite recovered from the heavy rain experienced during the week, the ground being very dead in parts.

Goldman and Mrs. Lochner played well. Both drove beautifully. Goldman's cross-court drives, which were a feature of his game in the Colony Doubles Championship, were again devastating.

Mrs. Lochner backed her partner up very well, playing many good rallies.

Recreio Lapse

Dr. Tottenham and Mrs. Lewis Bryan had two comfortable wins, but were extended against F. J. Remedios and Miss C. M. Botelho, who at one time came to within an ace of taking the lead. Only the bad placing of Remedios resulted in the loss of an important game.

Mrs. Lewis-Bryan again played her long drives beautifully and made several fine smashes at the net.

Captain Cannon and Mrs. James, who made their first appearance together in the League, have yet to acquire that perfect understanding so necessary for a good partnership.

Captain Cannon brought off many good kills at the net and puzzled his opponents with his service which bounced very high and was difficult to return.

The Recreio weakness lay in their ladies.

The three Recreio ladies played fairly well, but they would improve tremendously with a little coaching.

Miss C. M. Botelho Shines

With the exception of Miss C. M. Botelho, the Misses O. M. Botelho and O. M. Rebelo made very few attempts to chase the ball.

Miss C. M. Botelho was outstanding, sending across several powerful drives and smashes. She supported her partner, F. J. Remedios, to the best of her ability, and was certainly the best of the three Recreio ladies.

F. J. Remedios and J. Gonsalves were fairly good, but they would improve a left hander with considerable power in his drives and smashes. He was very strong on the back hand, and magnificent at the net, although he was weak in his lobbing.

C. A. Barretto was steady and displayed good stroke production. He was very good on his back hand, but he lacked sting in his shots to make them effective.

The following were the scores:—
F. J. Remedios and Miss C. M. Botelho (Recreio):—
lost to L. Goldman and Mrs. Lochner 1-6 lost to Dr. Tottenham and Mrs. Lewis-Bryan 4-6 lost to Captain P. S. Cannon and Mrs. James 2-6 J. Gonsalves and Miss O. M. Botelho (Recreio):—

lost to Goldman and Mrs. Lochner 2-6 lost to Tottenham and Mrs. Lewis-Bryan 1-6 lost to Cannon and Mrs. James 1-6

LAWN BOWLS COMMITTEE AND NEW RULINGS

Fate of Spey Royal Cup Tourney.

INTERPORT INVITATION

The possibility of introducing a rinks championship in place of the Spey Royal Cup competition, and also a pairs competition was discussed at a meeting of the Hong Kong Lawn Bowls Association held at Messrs. Lane, Crawford's Restaurant yesterday afternoon to consider the revision of the rules of the Association.

Mr. J. Russell was in the chair. After a long discussion on the rules as circulated, and the amendments as suggested by the chairman for the consideration of the committee it was decided that equality of representation and powers of voting should be granted all clubs. Under the revised rules a member of a club might make a proposition which might be carried in direct opposition to the instructions of that member's own appointed club representative.

The following members were elected to the sub-committee to consider further the revised rules:—Messrs. J. Russell, G. E. F. Thompson, H. Hampton, B. Wylie, and A. H. Basto.

It was unanimously agreed to issue an invitation to Shanghai to send a team to Hong Kong for the annual interport matches at such time as was convenient to the northerners.

L. R. C. LOSE TO C. R. C.

Brilliant play by Tsui Wai-pui and Mrs. Chiu Chun-chiu was responsible for the defeat of the Ladies' Recreation Club by 6½ sets to 2½ against the Chinese Recreation Club at Causeway Bay yesterday.

Tsui was in magnificent form while Mrs. Chiu was deadly at the net.

Mrs. Chiu is one of the most promising lady doubles players in the Colony.

M. K. Lo and his sister, Enid Lo, Colony champion, were absentees from the C.R.C. team.

VOLUNTEERS TRIUMPH

Beat Borderers In Billiards Final

SOLDIERS' CLUB TITLE WON BY 200 POINTS

THE PORTUGUESE COMPANY, H.K.V.D.C. WON THE SOLDIERS' CLUB BILLIARDS TOURNAMENT LAST NIGHT WHEN THEY BEAT HEADQUARTER WING, SOUTH WALES BORDERERS, BY 200 POINTS IN THE FINAL ROUND AT THE SOLDIERS' CLUB.

The Volunteers fully deserved their convincing victory. They were superior to their opponents in every department. At the commencement of the last two games they led by 172.

C/Sgt. Jarman, who recorded a 37 break, should have beaten M. M. Silva by a bigger margin than 58 points. The Colony Championship runner-up, however, preferred to play a safe game and it was due to this that Silva lessened the gap with breaks of 23 and 35.

A. Pereira chalked up 31 and 36 to win by 51, while L/Cpl. Williams had a 32 to aid him in beating A. V. Gosamo by 2 points. Pte. Pryce recorded a 26, but lost by 39 points.

GERMAN SOCCER FINAL

Cologne, June 11.
Before at least 55,000 spectators the final game for the German football championship was played this afternoon. Fortuna, Dusseldorf, winning against their traditional opponents, Schalke, in Westphalia, by 3-0.

Goodwill and I am afraid I must say, good manners, too, are the only things that make it possible for any important golf event to be carried through without such regrettable incidents as those at Southport during the professional tournament. To mention only one incident, the failure to hole a putt which would have enabled him to tie for first place is sufficient justification for an appeal to good taste.—F. J. O. Pigeon.

FOOD AND HOME ECONOMICS

Strawberries Make Queen Of All Cakes

Old-Fashioned Recipe Still Prized By Cooks Everywhere.

Do you remember the description of the high-tea in the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow?" Such an array of good things to eat would bewilder us to-day. But I'm sure that of the "sweet cakes" and short cakes, ginger cakes and honey cakes, and the whole family of cakes, most of us would yield to the shortcake, even as Ichabod Crane did more than 100 years ago.

Cut fruit in small pieces, cover with sugar and let stand in a warm place for 20 or 30 minutes. This extracts some of the juice and the fruit itself is thoroughly sweetened.

Old-fashioned shortcake makes a very substantial dessert and is suitable to serve after a light meal. In fact, a good-sized wedge of strawberry shortcake served with lots of rich cream is almost a full meal in itself—and a well balanced one, too.

The following rule will serve four persons generously.

Old-Fashioned Strawberry Shortcake.
One quart of strawberries, 3-4 cup granulated sugar, 1 1-2 cups flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoons salt, 4 tablespoons butter or other shortening and butter mixed, 1-2 cup milk or water (about).

Wash and hull berries and cut in quarters. Sprinkle with sugar and let stand in a warm place while mixing and baking shortcake. Mix and sift flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, salt and baking powder. Work in shortening with pastry blender or rub in with tips of fingers. Cut in liquid to make a soft dough. Divide dough in halves and roll lightly on a floured molding-board to fit baking pan. Place in pan which has been oiled and floured. Spread generously with softened butter and cover with remaining dough.

Hygienic Butter Pats

Cold Water Must Be Used.

As soon as butter pats have been used they should be immersed in a jug of cold water and left to soak. They may then be washed with salt. Scrub the pats in cold water with plenty of salt and afterwards wash them in hot water.

Greasy butter pats should never be washed straight away in hot water or they will be difficult to get clean, and, additionally, will be not nearly so hygienic. Hang the butter pats out of doors to dry.

Simple Tea Service Solves the Problem

The women without a maid finds the afternoon tea most practical for entertaining friends, successfully. If there are to be only three or four, the service may be on a tea table and the foods served are very thin sandwiches or thin slices of buttered toast, dainty cakes and tea—hot or in an iced beverage.

This Dessert Is Well Suited To End Heavy Meal

Many of us have experienced that uncomfortable feeling after having feasted too well. The dinner has been a hearty one. The hostess has unwisely chosen too rich a dessert to finish the meal.

Be sure to choose a dessert that will balance the meal. For the conclusion of a hearty meal try this simple and attractive dessert.

Amber Dessert.
One package orange flavoured gelatin.
One and one-half cups boiled prune juice.

which has been rolled to fit lower section. Put into a moderate oven—350 degrees F.—and gradually increase heat to 400 degrees F. Bake 25 minutes. When ready to serve, split section apart. Spread lower section with butter and cover with a thick layer of berries and juice. Put on top section of biscuit and add more berries. This may be topped with slightly sweetened whipped cream and garnished with perfect whole berries which have been saved for the purpose. Serve with rich plain cream.

Instead of making one large shortcake the dough can be cut in rounds to make individual cakes. These are, split and served like the large one.

Menu Suggestions For To-morrow

The Menu
Eggs and Mushrooms, Escalloped
Buttered Beets
Biscuits Plum Jelly
Watercress Salad
Queen Pudding Coffee

Eggs and Mushrooms, Escalloped (Serving three)

3 hard cooked eggs, sliced.
4 tablespoons butter.
4 tablespoons flour.
2½ cups milk.
1/3 teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon paprika.
¼ teaspoon celery salt.
1 teaspoon chopped parsley.
1 teaspoon chopped pimiento.
½ cup browned mushrooms.
½ cup crumbs.
2 tablespoons butter, melted.
Cream 4 tablespoons butter and add flour. Add milk and cook until creamy sauce forms. Add seasonings, eggs and mushrooms. Pour into buttered, shallow baking dish. Cover with crumbs which have been mixed with melted butter. Bake 25 minutes in moderate oven. Serve in dish in which baked.

Water-cress Salad.
1 cup water-cress.
¼ teaspoon salt.
4 tablespoons French dressing.
Carefully wash cress. Place in

Salad Bowl, Old French Custom, Is Still In Use

The salad bowl should never lose its place on the menu. In France the head of the family mixes the salad at the table and it is indeed considered a rite.

An iced bowl which has been rubbed around the inner edges with a cut toe of garlic should be brought to the table. Place the chopped salad greens, diced celery, sliced vegetables in the bowl and pour over the mixture a goodly supply of French dressing. Toss together lightly and serve on salad plates. If you desire to do this in the real French manner, you will bring to the table a bottle of olive oil, a cruet of vinegar and salt and pepper in small bowls with a bone or glass spoon for each of the spices.

IMPROVING HAM

When boiling a ham, the flavour is improved by the addition to the water of a cup of vinegar, a cup of brown sugar and a few cloves.

BUTTERMILK IN THIS SHERBET

Although buttermilk sherbet is an old favourite, most peculiar is the fact that the sherbet does not have a "sour" flavour. Here is the recipe:

Two cups buttermilk
One-half cup sugar
One cup fresh pineapple, ground
One egg white unbeaten
One teaspoon vanilla.

INEXPENSIVE LAMB CUTS PROVE GOOD

Breast and Shoulder May Be Used In Tempting Dishes.

If you are in the habit of using only lamb chops and leg of lamb you are missing some economical and delicious meals featuring such inexpensive cuts as the breast and shoulder of lamb.

Breast of Lamb
Two and one-half pounds breast of lamb, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 small onion, 4 medium sized parsnips, 1½ cups cooked peas, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour.

Separate lamb into pieces for serving and put into a casserole with boiling water to cover. Season with salt and onion, peeled but not cut. Cover and cook in a moderate oven for 45 minutes. Add parsnips which have been scraped and cook 45 minutes longer. Drain from broth and arrange in a hot platter, putting meat in the center and making a border of parsnips. Melt butter in sauce pan, stir in

Sauces On Market Offer Quick, Easy Way For Housewife To Vary Food

The clever cook knows and makes use of the many excellent prepared sauces on the market. As a means toward variety at small cost these sauces are almost indispensable. While they may be used with substantial foods as a relish, they are also an important ingredient in the preparation of many types of dishes.

Prepared mustard has many more interesting possibilities than its ordinary use as an accompaniment to ham and frankfurters. The next time you make a white sauce for a vegetable or meat, add a little prepared mustard and see if it doesn't pep up the combination. Use it with cheese. Include it in the seasonings for meat loaves and croquettes. And to all scalloped dishes. Spread it lightly on meat and fish before cooking. Use it sparingly of course in most instances, but don't hesitate to try it.

Shortcut in Cooking
If you are looking for shortcuts in cooking, you will find one in the Freshen Coconut In Lukewarm Milk.

If you have a partially used box of coconut which has dried out, soak it for ten minutes in lukewarm milk, then drain and it will have the texture and flavour of freshly grated coconut.

REMEMBER CASSEROLES

If you must keep meals waiting frequently, form the habit of preparing a casserole dish. Standing will not injure its flavor and in some cases the food is better when it is not served immediately. Creamed dishes are easily reheated, also.

flour and when bubbling slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and add peas. Pour over lamb and parsnips and serve.

Roast Shoulder of Lamb
One shoulder of lamb, 1 quart can tomatoes, 1 pound bunch young onions, 1 sweet green pepper, 1 cup hot water, 2 bouillon cubes, 2 cups elbow macaroni, ½ cup grated cheese, salt, paprika.

Put meat on rack of roaster and roast in a hot oven for 20 minutes. Then reduce heat and pour over tomatoes which have been rubbed through a sieve and combined with onions cut in slices, pepper seeded and shredded and bouillon cubes dissolved in hot water. Season with 2 teaspoons salt and ½ teaspoon pepper and baste the lamb frequently with tomato sauce while roasting two hours. In the meantime cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Place meat on a hot platter and pour over tomato sauce. Surround with cooked macaroni sprinkled with grated cheese. Put under broiler flame long enough to melt cheese. Add a dash of paprika over the macaroni for colour and serve.

well did want. She wouldn't let me help her to stop where she was, and she didn't seem anxious for anyone to help her to go anywhere else. She was quite peculiar about it. She gripped hold of my arm, and said:

"What do you think this is that's coming?"

"I'm sure I don't know, being a stranger in these parts, but it sounds like a lorry full of milk cans."

I offered to lay her asistance about it. She'd have had to pay, too, because it was a lorry full of milk cans. The driver had to pull up because there wasn't room to get by. He got down and asked if there was anything he could do to help. We explained the situation. He said he was going to Norwich, and was quite ready to give her a tow if she wanted it. However, she wouldn't do that, and it was finally decided to shove her car into my garage for the night, to be sent for next day, and the lorry was to take her along to Norwich.

Well, I managed to find the key of the garage and the lorry driver—Williams, his name was—and I ran the car in and locked the door. This having been done (ablative absolute)—I suggested that it was a very cold night. Williams agreed, and said he didn't mind if he did. So I took them both indoors and mixed them a stiff whisky and water each. There wasn't any soda. And, naturally, the whole thing had left me very cold, too. I hadn't an overcoat on.

Up to now I hadn't seriously considered the young woman. For one thing it had been dark, and there had been a seized engine to look at. Er—I'm afraid that's not a very gallant remark. What I mean is that to anyone with a mechanical mind a motor-car in that condition is much more interesting than—er—well, it is very interesting—but why labour the point. However, in the sitting-room, in the lamplight, it was possible to get more of an idea. She was a little older than I'd thought, and her eyes were too close together.

Of course, she wasn't a—how shall I put it? Her manners weren't quite easy and she was careful with her English. You know. But that wasn't it. She treated us with a lack of friendliness which was—well, we'd done nothing to deserve it. There was a sort of vague hostility and suspicion, which seemed rather hard lines, considering. Also, she was so anxious to keep in the shadow that if I hadn't moved the lamp away she'd never have got near the fire at all.

And the way she hurried the wretched Williams over his drink was quite distressing; and foolish, too, as he was going to drive, but that was her—funnel. When he'd gone out to start up his engine I asked her if she was all right for money, and she apparently was. Then they started off, and I shut the place and went upstairs.

There happened to be a local guide-book in my bedroom, with maps in it. I looked at those and couldn't help wondering where the girl in the car had come from; I mean my road seemed so very unimportant. The sort of road one might use if one wanted to avoid people. If one were driving a stolen car, for instance. This was quite a thrilling idea. I thought it might be worth while having another look at the car.

So I once more unhooked the key from the kitchen dresser and sallied forth into the snow. It was as black as pitch, and so still that my candle hardly flickered. It wasn't a large garage, and the car nearly filled it. But the by, we'd backed it in so as to make it easier to tow it out again.

The engine I'd already seen, so I squeezed past along the wall and opened the door in the body part of the car. At least, I only turned the handle, and the door was pushed open from the inside, and—something—fell out on me. I pushed me quite hard and wedged me against the wall. It also knocked the candle out of my hand and left me in the dark—which was a bit of a nuisance. I wondered what on earth the thing was—barging into me like that—so I felt it, rather gingerly, and found it was a man—a dead man—with a moustache. He'd evidently been sitting propped up against the door. I managed to put him back as decorously as possible, and shut the door again.

After a lot of grovelling about the car I found the candle and lighted it and opened the opposite door and switched on the little lamp in the roof—and then—er!

Of course I had to make some sort of examination. He was an extremely tall and thin individual. He must have been well over six feet three. He was dark and very cadaverous looking. In fact, I don't suppose he'd ever looked so cadaverous in his life. He was wearing a trench coat.

It wasn't difficult to tell what he'd died of. He'd been shot through the back. I found the hole just under the right scapula, or scapula—what is shoulder-blade, anyway? Oh, clavicle—stupid of me—well, that's where it was, and the bullet had evidently gone through into the lung. I said "evidently," and leave it at that.

There were no papers in his pockets, and no tailor's name on his clothes, but there was a note-case, with nine pounds in it. Altogether a most unpleasant business. Of course, it doesn't do to question the workings of Providence, but one couldn't help wishing it hadn't happened. It was just a little mysterious, too—er—who had killed him. It wasn't likely that the girl had or she wouldn't have been joy-riding about the country with him; and if someone else had murdered him why hadn't she mentioned it? Anyway, she hadn't and she'd gone, so one couldn't do anything for the time being. No telephone, of course. I just locked up the garage and went to bed. That was two o'clock.

Next morning I woke early, for some reason or other, and it occurred to me as a good idea to go and have a look at things—by daylight, and before Mrs. Selston turned up. So I did. The first thing that struck me was that it had snowed heavily during the night, because there were no wheel tracks or footprints, and the second was that I'd left the key in the garage door. I opened it and went in. The place was completely empty. No car, no body, no nothing. There was a patch of grease on the floor where I'd dropped the candle; otherwise there was nothing to show I'd been there before. One of two things must have happened: either some people had come along during the night and taken the car away, or else I'd fallen asleep in front of the fire and dreamt the whole thing.

Then I remembered the whisky glasses. They should still be in the sitting-room. I went back to look, and they were, all three of them. So it hadn't been a dream and the car had been fetched away, but they must have been jolly quiet over it.

The girl had left her glass on the mantel-piece, and it showed several very clearly defined finger-marks. Some were mine, naturally, because I'd fetched the glass from the kitchen and poured out the drink for her; but hers, her finger-marks, were clean, and mine were oily, so it was quite easy to tell them apart. This glass was very important. It isn't necessary to point out that there'd evidently been a murder, or something of that kind, and the girl must have known all about it, even if she hadn't actually done it herself, so anything she had left in the way of evidence ought to be handed over to the police; and this was all she had left. So I packed it up with meticulous care in an old bluetint-box out of the larder.

When Mrs. Selston came I settled up with her and came back to Town. Oh, I called on the landlord on the way and told him I'd "let him know" about the bungalow. Then I caught my train, and in due course drove straight to Scotland Yard. I went up and saw my friend there. I produced the glass and asked him if his people could identify the marks. He said: "Probably not," but he sent it down to the finger-print department and asked me where it came from. I said: "Never you mind; let's have the identification first." He said: "All right."

They're awfully quick, these people—the clerk was back in three minutes with a file of papers. They told me her name and showed me her photograph; not flattering. Quite an adventurous lady, from all accounts. In the early part of her career she'd done time twice for shoplifting, chiefly in the book department. Then she'd what they call "taken up with" a member of one of those race-gangs one sometimes hears about.

My pal went on to say that there'd stuck to that nine pounds!

been a fight between two of these gangs, in the course of which her friend had got shot. She'd managed to get him away in a car, but it had broken down somewhere in Norfolk. So she'd left it and the dead man in someone's garage, and had started off for Norwich in a lorry. Only she never got there. On the way the lorry had skidded, and both she and the driver—a fellow called Williams—had been thrown out, and they'd rammed their heads against a brick wall, which everyone knows is a fatal thing to do. At least, it was in their case.

I said: "Look here, it's all very well, but you simply can't know all this; there hasn't been time—it only happened last night."

He said: "Last night, be blowed! It all happened in February 1919. The people you've described have been dead for years."

I said: "Oh!"

New York's 75,000 Workless Girls

Many Spend Nights In Subway Trains

NO FOOD OR HOMES

New York. The plight of 75,000 girls in New York City, who are without jobs, homes and even food, is described by Mrs. Walter Nelson Sedgwick, manager of a women's club.

Mrs. Sedgwick said:—"Actually some of these girls have spent nights riding uptown, down and crosstown in the subway, sleeping as best they can between changes, finally too tired to wake up at each jerky stop."

The hotel houses a hundred girls in need of partial or complete support.

"Some of them are registered at as many as 16 employment agencies, and spend the day making the round of them. Their only home is the waiting-room of department stores, or they can sit for a few hours in the Grand Central or Pennsylvania stations."

"Can you blame a girl for anything she might do?" she asked. "Yet they sell everything they own and wait until they can't afford a meal even in a penny kitchen before they will appeal to charity. I can't speak too highly of the courage of the unemployed girl, and I think the Government should help them as it has the boys."

Yale Manners.

Yale men who drink have the worst manners of any college students, Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar, declares.

"Drink is an art," Dr. MacCracken says, "and while in France it may be productive of good conversation, in Germany of music, and in England of social living, here it makes fools out of gentlemen. Liquor should be made an agreeable diversion, not a bestial narcotic."

"I rank Yale men among the worst in this manner; Yale, which has always been among the leaders of a fine tradition of conduct."

A marathon robin which had to keep on the wing to hold the pace with her brood is getting a rest. Conductor Roy Blodgett saw the bird flying under the caboose of a Hartford-Benton Harbour freight train, and investigation revealed a nest in the under structure, bearing two blue eggs. The next incoming freight train from Grand Rapids brought another caboose, and with it an order from division headquarters: "Use extra caboose until robin is done with her."

New York Crime.

Crime declined in New York State in 1932, the State Department of Correction has reported. There was also a marked decrease in the amount of property lost or stolen and a larger percentage of crime was solved than in 1931.

In New York City there were 26,302 major crimes in 1932, against 30,170 in 1931; in Buffalo, 3,120 last year, 3,827 in 1931; in places with a population between 100,000 and 250,000, 4,627 last year, 5,605 in 1931, and in cities of less than 10,000 the number dropped from 6,254 to 5,120.

Dr. Walter N. Thayer, Commissioner of Correction, said the figures for New York City showed "an increased efficiency in the field of crime prevention of 12.2, together with a like increased efficiency in crime solution of 6 per cent."

Voodooism mingled with threats of a one-way ride in a strange trial at Los Angeles. Barbara Taggs, negress, testified that she understood sorcery and had contracted to "will Mrs. Charles Taull and her baby to death for $70." The money, she said, was paid by Taull, who later lost faith in the "black magic" and threatened to take the negress "for a one-way ride" if she failed to "concentrate properly on the case."

A Magic Powder.

Mrs. Marie Atwood, told about the magic powder certain to lure back the love of a husband whose eye was beginning to wander.

One need only to sprinkle a trifle on his nose while sleeping, another pinch on the back of

THE ARITHMETICAL CALCULATION.

I admit, and all supporters of the decimal and metric system will admit, that the system is not ideal. It falls short of the ideal because the number 10 cannot be divided by four without a fraction. It can only be divided by two and by five. This is a drawback which is not shared, for example, by the monetary system of Britain. You can divide a pound by two, (four, five and 10; a shilling by two, three and by four; a penny by four as well as by two, which is convenient—particularly for the poor.

The Ideal System.

The ideal system would have eleven single-figure characters instead of nine. And they would run 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, x, y, with a 10 or a 12 to complete the series. It is improbable that the ideal system will ever be attained.

In the meantime the decimal or metric system is immensely superior, on balance, to any other system. Also it is complete, logical, and all-embracing. Also it is in universal use throughout Europe (except in Russia and Great Britain). We are as backward as Russia in a capital matter of practical civilization. We stand by ourselves in Western Europe. We are odd, eccentric, wilful, obstinate, and in business are thereby a nuisance to ourselves and to all who have dealings with us.

Why do we persist in our distressing and absurd attitude? The answers are various. Partly because it is our nature to be eccentric. Partly because we have a secret conviction that in an affair of manners (this is an affair of manners) if our practice differs from another man's, it is the other man who ought to conform to us and not vice versa. Partly because we have a partiality for muddle. And partly because we are intensely conservative by temperament, hate change, and hate the trouble which change, even for the better, entails. These are all reasons, but they are bad reasons. The change is quite practicable it ought to be made; and one day we shall be compelled to make it. When we do make it, the world will smile and murmur, "At last!"

once flourished here provided an inviting pasture for the enormous animals. As close as the Connecticut valley, he points out, dinosaur tracks are common.

His study also advances the belief that the American Indian was the first man to inhabit this area, for there is no geological proof of a predecessor. This is contrary to the evidence of Europe, where primitive man existed, side by side with mammoth quadrupeds.

Despite the certainty that forests and animals were abundant in this region all traces of them disappeared with the coming of the great ice sheet, as the animals fled southward and forests bowed to the advancing glaciers.

This glacial ice, according to Mr. Hartnagel's calculations, could not have been less than 6000ft. thick in New York State. That it reached a thickness of 8000 to 10,000ft. in some localities, he adds, that the subtropical fauna that is "not at all improbable."

FEAST OF SACRED HEART.

Function At Catholic Cathedral.

The Catholic Feast of the Sacred Heart which fell yesterday, was celebrated at the Catholic Cathedral with more than usual fervour by those of the Faith, in association with the significance of this year, just completing the nineteen hundred years since the death of Christ.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop H. Valtorta, assisted by the Cathedral clergy and representatives from the different religious Orders and Missions in the Colony, took a leading part in the procession of the Blessed Sacrament.
